BOGUS LORD'S WIFE DESTITUTE VICTIM

Beautiful Asheville Girl Deserted on Mexican Border.

HUSBAND A BIGAMIST

Favorite Trick to Marry Wealthy Women of Various States and Leave Them After Committing Robbery.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 25.—Not murdered, as was feared by her relatives, but deserted by "Lord Percy Douglas" and left wandering in the streets of Santa Ana, Cal., was the fate of Josephine Hood, the beautiful Asheville girl who was married on December 16 to the sham lord. Efforts are being made now to find her and send

If John C. Cavendish, or "Lord Percy Sholto Reginald Douglas," as he is better known, is ever caught and returned to this city for trial the chances are that his bigamous career will be ended in summary fashion before any jury can be called to decide his fate.

Community Greatly Incensed.

No crime in a long time has aroused this community to the extent that the victimizing of Miss Hood has done. When "Lord Douglas" left here after vent. He left word also that all letters should be directed to the American con sul in Vera Cruz, and when four month passed without any word from "Lord" Percy or his wife, the parents of the bride started an investigation. They learned hat "Lord" Percy really was a notorious olgamist and then they feared that their daughter had been murdered. The belief that the girl was dead had grown to certainty in the minds of her relatives when Mrs. J. N. Hood, the girl's mother, received a message from Santa Ana saying that her daughter had been deserted there and had been seen wandering in the streets. The sender of the message was Edgar Johnson, formerly of this city, and word was telegraphed to him to spare no expense in finding her and sending her home. passed without any word from "Lord"

Ashamed to Write Home.

Mrs. Charles Platt, an aunt of the missing girl, said that her niece probably felt so humiliated over her desertion that she was ashamed to write home and tell of her misfortune. Mrs. Platt asserted that not only had the girl's mother received a dispatch tellng that her daughter had been seen in Santa Ana, but that Mrs. Edith Ward Beam, of this city, had received a let-

"Lord Douglas" has been married to so many women in various parts of the country that it has been impossible to keep track of all of them. All of his wives were of good families, and he married them invariably after a brief courtship. Their married life was equally brief, for the bogus lord deserted his spouses soon after having married them. It was a favorite trick of the bigamist to start for Mexico with his new wife and then desert her before reaching the border. One woman, Miss Anderson, of Fort Worth, Tex., he took to Monterey, Mexico, where he robbed her of $700 after seeking to kill her.

Did William M. Gartrell, survivor o ne Maine, and now an inmate of St. Elizabeth's, suffer an unspeakable brutal assault at the hands of two night attendants of the asylum, or has he blackened eyes, bruised face and injured body tendant?

This is a problem which will probably ame up within the next few days before the special Congressional committee now investigating the Government Hospital for the Insa Statement of Asylum Authorities.

The story of the asylum authorities is that last Saturday night William M. Gartrell, "a very dangerous man," murderously attacked his attendant, and the attendant had to defend himself from death at the maniac's hands. It was further denied that Gartrell received his black eves at the hands of the attendant. Further than this the asylum authorities would not talk except to say. "The account which has been published of the affair is grossly perverted, and is exaggeruted as much as is possible. The affair vill probable be gone into by the Congressional committee, which body will bring out the real facts."

He will equip his full-sized machine with a ten-horsepower motor and expects it to have a lifting power sufficient to sustain fully 500 pounds of dead weight in the air, in addition to the machine, which will weight about 330 pounds.

No gas bags are used. Bratchie depends entirely upon mechanical means to lift and guide his airship. The motive power consists of two huge propellers. The driving motor is directly beneath them and under the aeroplanes hangs a slightly built metal cage, like a small oil derrick, in which the operator sits.

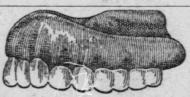

The propellers in a horizonal position, will lift and carry the machine forward, while an inclination upward or downward of their axis will aid in the ascent or descent, as desired, Bratchie explains: More than this he will not say. He expects to make a public demonstration some time this summer.
